

Curiosity and Caution

I've made the Lonely Galaxy Mediawiki instance public. It can be found at <https://constructed.world>.

I don't know how long I can keep it up for, but there it is.

Before I forget:

"Curiosity and Caution" is an artistic motif, usually depicted in statuary, of a young yinrih bounding forward while an old yinrih holds the other back by the tail. It represents the ethos of a research monk, a sense of wonder and exploration tempered by prudence and caution. The two forces both work against one another but are still essential. Without curiosity you cannot advance, but without caution you end up advancing right off a cliff.
