

I Like Trains

While the Bright Way held a monopoly on interplanetary travel during the age of decadence, terrestrial transport and logistics lay outside their control.

Personal vehicles are much rarer in yinrih society compared to ~~my terminally car-dependent hometown~~ Earth. Fixed route public transit dominates in large urban centers, especially trains. Some train lines are owned by private companies, others by municipal governments. It varies by region. Trains and train infrastructure are almost entirely automated, meaning timeliness is rarely an issue.
