

The Yinti

Around the high southerly latitudes of Yih there is a cryptid known as the rcfrcfDFg b sPnqq (great snow beast), or "yinti" to humans. It is described as being anywhere from grizzly- to elephant-sized, bearing white fur and possessing a roughly cynoid body shape. An ambush predator, it makes its home in caves atop sheer cliffs and kills its prey by flinging itself over the edge and crushing the unsuspecting prey under its bulk, suffering no injury from the impact. More fanciful legends speak of it simply killing out of aggression or malice rather than predation, bouncing elastically back to the clifftop after dispatching its victim.
