Scripturally accurate Claravian angel?

Of course I've noted before that in the Bright Way angels are more solutions to certain theological problems rather than tangible entities. "If the Light is utterly unknowable, it must communicate to its little ones through some intermediary" and so on. Demons are another story. They're much more relevant in the popular consciousness, though official Claravian doctrine explicitly discourages even discussing them, since they may not even exist, so why worry about them, and if they do, worrying about them only grants them power over you.
